KAMPE VICTOR IN HOT FRANKFORT TOWN ELECTION

In a hotly contested political fight, William Kampe was re-elected Supervisor of Frankfort township. His entire ticket was victorious.

Wm. Knippel ran away ahead of his ticket with 771 votes. Mr. Knippel was re-elected constable, a job he has held for many years.

A total of 1,090 votes was cast in Frankfort and Mokena, the two precincts of the township. The results of the election were as follows:

Independent ticket No. 1: for supervisor, Wm. Kampe, precinct one 364, second precinct 198; for town clerk, Henry A. Geuther, first precinct 438, second 283; for assessor, Joe Kohl, first precinct 345, second 320; for tax collector, George C. Mager, first precinct 386, second 253; justice of the peace, J. M. Clark, first precinct 385, second 155; Richard Hensel, first 261, second 223; for constable, Wm. L. Knippel, first 492, second 279; for school trustee, Wm. Hansen, second 237, no opposition.

Independent No. 2: for justice of the peace, Don C. Hall Jr., first precinct 48; second, 80.

People's Ticket: for supervisor, Walden Larson, first precinct, 175; second 85. For assessor, J. C. DePorto, first precinct, 196, second 113. For tax collector, Alfred E. Heiman, first precinct 130, second 163. For justice of the peace, J. C. Knight, first precinct 155, second 64. For constable, Albert H. Hentsch, first precinct, 83, second 208.

Independent No. 3: For supervisor, Herman Schweser, first precinct, 38, second 208. For justice of the peace, Christ Kohl, first precinct, 58, second 221. For constable, George Bennett, first precinct 112, second 186.

Frankfort is precinct one and Mokena is precinct two.

Perfect Plans For July 4th Celebration

A meeting was held Monday evening in the New Lenox School of the committee members of the band association of New Lenox, Frankfort, Mokena, and Tinley Park, to perfect the organization for the joint celebration of July 5th to be held in the Frankfort Grove. Plans were made to carry out this affair on a large scale and to have one of the best celebrations which has been held in this territory for some time.

The next meeting will be held in May in the Tinley Park school.

Mokena Wins Basketball Tourney

A strong Mokena Quintet emerged victor after staging an uphill battle against a determined Joliet team that throughout the tournament won the favor of cage fans to climax Tinley Park's biggest year of the hardwood sport.

Following a week of the most thrilling and hard fought basketball games these two teams met for the southwest area championship. Leading 15 to 11 at half time, the Joliet boys failed to withhold Mokena's second half attack finally succumbing by the score of 35 to 28.

As an added attraction, two Harvey teams staged a game using 1937 and 1938 rules which eliminate the center tip-off. This game was probably the fastest ever played on the local floor which saw the Harvey I. C's winning 38 to 32.

The TYO takes this opportunity to thank all those who co-operated in making 1936-37 a successful basketball year and already plans are being made to duplicate the performance in 1937 and 1938.

To Pay Election Bet With Baby Buggy Ride

Albert Hentsch will pay off an election bet next Sunday April 11 when he will push George Bennett also of Mokena in a baby buggy from Frankfort down Keane avenue to the Lincoln highway and thence over Wolf Road to Mokena.

Hentsch and Bennett both were in the race for the office of constable and Hentsch lost out by 7 votes.

The baby buggy march will start from the Bauman corner in Frankfort about 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and it is estimated it will take from two to three hours for the parade to arrive in Mokena. Hentsch is to be attired as a woman and will carry a green flag.

A large throng is expected to witness the stunt and many will accompany the pair on their trip from Frankfort to Mokena.

Tinley Youth Organization Will Hold May Dance

The first annual TYO May Dance will be held in the Tinley Park school auditorium Saturday May 8th with Bob Phillip's and His Florida Ambassadors furnishing the music.

Bob Phillip's eleven piece band is one of the southwest area's most prominent organizations playing at all leading ballrooms, country clubs, schools, sororities, and fraternities in the Chicago area. Recently he broadcast over the Columbia network, KMOX, St. Louis, Gary, Ind., and Champaign radio stations.

He has played at Dellwood Park in Joliet and the Colonial ballroom in New Lenox.

Phillips features the Lombards style of playing. He has three vocalists, a vocal trio and also an electrically amplified guitar.

Everywhere he plays, he is received with great favor and the TYO is proud to be able to present this band to Tinley Park.

Don't forget the night of this gala affair, Saturday May 8.

Have Narrow Escape When Car Hits Dip In Road

Three men riding in a Studebaker had a narrow escape from death last Friday evening when their car while traveling at a high rate of speed, struck a dip in the pavement on 159th street just east of the Wabash crossing. The dip is protected at night by flares but the men who were from Michigan City, Indiana, evidently did not slow down with the result that when the car hit the dip, it turned over three times, the rear end sinking in the water in the ditch. One of the men was knocked unconscious, but his companions escaped injury and managed to drag him out of the car which was badly wrecked.

Carl Bormet New Orland Highway Commissioner

Carl Bormet, well known Orland township farmer, defeated Wm. T. Beagley in the race for highway commissioner in Orland township at Tuesday's election. Mr. Beagley held the office of commissioner for about sixteen years.

The combined vote in the two precincts of the township was as follows:

For supervisor, Fred E. Yunker 477; for town clerk, Joseph E. Creer 467; for assessor, Martin Smith 473; for collector, Edw. Schmaedeke 463; Thomas E. Cooper 212; for highway commissioner, Wm. T. Beagley 264; John M. Yunker 124; Carl Bormet 290; for justice of the peace, Louis C. Raschke 375; Ray P. Brennan 421; for school trustee, John C. Habenicht 301.

No candidate having filed for the office of constable, John Helenhouse, Fire Chief of Orland Park decided to enter the race at the eleventh hour and made a strenuous campaign resulting in his election with 140 votes. Richard Yates also entered the race for the same office at the last minute and received 18 votes.

Frazer Re-elected Supervisor of Homer Township

Following are the election returns of the election held in the town of Homer Tuesday:

Town ticket: for supervisor, James D. Frazer, 249; town clerk, B. F. Ingersoll, 227; assessor, George White, 257; collector, Frank Carroll, 193; justices of the peace, Wm. Ross 253; John T. White, 251; constable, George R. Bump, 249; school trustee, Edna Lauffer, 256.

Independent ticket: for supervisor, Barney Welter, 108; for town clerk, Otto Konow, 126; collector, Timothy Donahue, 156.

The petition for gravel was passed by 247 votes against 97. The sanitarium petition was passed by 213 against 121.

Mokena Election Board Appointed

The Mokena village election officials who will serve at the annual village election Tuesday, April 20th are as follows:

Judges of election George Knudson, John Mattes, Wm. Schmuhl; Clerks of election O. E. McGovney and C. E. Sippel.

School Election

The school election this Saturday will be held in the Mokena village hall from 2 to 7 p. m. Lawrence Kohl whose term as school director expires is a candidate for re-election.

JOHN CLARKE BREMEN COM. LOSES BY 344

In the hottest political fight ever staged in Bremen Township, John Clark who served this township as highway commissioner for twenty-six years, was defeated for re-election Tuesday by Wm. H. Kreis, popular Ford dealer of Midlothian.

The entire fight centered on the highway commissionership. The successful candidate was at the head of the Progressive ticket and won by a majority of 344 votes.

The followers of the Progressive Ticket staged a real battle day and night for weeks previous to the election for better roads in Bremen Township.

When victory was finally theirs, the Lions Club House in Midlothian was the scene for hours of a wild, frenzied joy. People joined in from all parts of the township to participate in the celebration. Jammed clear out into the street, the people sang, danced, laughed and yelled until the noise and racket became almost unbearable.

When the new highway commissioner appeared on the scene he was given a long and hilarious ovation.

The only other successful candidate on the Progressive ticket was Walter C. Dohl for Justice of the Peace. All the other candidates on the Citizens Coalition ticket with the exception of highway commissioner and the one justice, were elected. The candidates at the head of the ticket outside of commissioner had no opposition.

The combined vote for the various candidates on both tickets received in the township was as follows:

Coalition Ticket, Supervisor, Otto Ziebell, 2394; for Town Clerk, Edward A. Reimer, 2219; for Assessor, Charles F. Nielsen, 2380; for Collector, William H. Fleischauer, 2324; for Highway Commissioner, John Clarke, 1733; for Justices of the Peace, A. F. Heintz, 1850; Emil Tscheulin, 1800; Robert Lewis 1823; Lawrence Klingens, 1527; William B. West, 1787; for Constable, Stewart Turner, 1871; Edward H. Reynolds, 1904; Frank Kissell, 1864; B. Leo Dryja, 1781; Clay O'Neal, 1783; for School Trustee, James F. Bennette, 1685.

Progressive Ticket, for Highway Commissioner, Wm. H. Kreis, 2077; for Justices of the Peace, Walter C. Dohl, 1793; Ernest G. Fairbank, 1689; S. Edward Watkins 1618; Charles S. Weinberger 1728; Hollis R. Abbott 1636; for Constable, Alfred A. Terry 1743; Mario W. Bernardino 1612; Samuel Moran 1607; Charles J. Debring 1663; Alfred J. Dunn, 1605; for School Trustee, Winfield Roesner 1540.

School Tax Increase of Major Importance

The school elections to be held in the rural communities of Will County Saturday of this week are of a real major importance, not merely to elect directors, but to vote on a slight increase in the tax rate from one half of one per cent to not more than three-fourths of one per cent for the purpose of making it possible for the non-high school district to carry on. There are over 250 students attending the Joliet Township high school whose tuition fees are being paid for by the non-high school district thru taxation. If the slight tax increase asked for is defeated, it will mean that the parents will have to pay these tuitions that will amount to $150 per year per student. In such an event there are many students who will be deprived of a high school education. Vote yes for the this slight increase and thus guarantee your children the continuance of the high school privileges they are now enjoying.

Frankfort Appoints Election Board

The Frankfort village board at their meeting Monday night named the following on the coming village election board: clerks Walter Carlson, Robert Stephen and Berton Breidert. Judges of election Ernest Knudson, Herbert Kohlhausen and Frank Cheney.

As three of the six village trustees to be elected will serve four years under the new law, the board decided the best way to select these three is by way of the first three receiving the highest votes.

Homer Resident Victim of Three Hold Up Men

Saturday evening, three hold-up men went to the home of Miss Augusta Hank, an elderly maiden lady, tied, beat and robbed her.

One of the men was dressed as a woman.

They found Miss Hank in the barn, caring for her stock and they enticed her from the hayloft with a request that she sell them some butter.

As she approached them, the man impersonating the woman, slugged her, then tied her hands tightly behind her back, but did not tie her feet so tightly. Then they asked her for her money, so she told them that she had 6 or 8 dollars in the kitchen cupboard. Not satisfied with that they left her locked in the barn while they ransacked the entire house.

Miss Hank managed to get the ropes from her feet and open the barn door with her teeth and struggled five hundred feet to the house of a neighbor, Jerome Boyce. Jerome immediately notified the sheriff and the local deputies but no trace of the desperadoes has been found as yet.

Tuberculosis Tax Goes Over Big

The Will County tuberculosis sanitarium measure went over with a margin over 16,000 votes in Tuesday's election. The small increase in taxes to keep the institution in operation will not be felt directly.

Jacobs Victor In Green Garden

The only contest in Green Garden at Tuesday's election was for the office of town clerk. Walter Jacobs, the Republican candidate was the victor over George F. Bobzin on the People's ticket. The returns were as follows:

Homer Couple Married In St. Michael's Church

On Tuesday morning at 10:00 a. m., a very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Michael's church in Orland Park, when Miss Eleanor Carroll, daughter of Mr. E. Carroll, became the bride of Mr. Clarence Wies, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wies. The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace and white accessories. She carried a bouquet of white roses and sweet peas. She was very charming.

The bride's attendant was Miss Leona Jungles, a niece of the bride. She was dressed in yellow lace and carried a bouquet of yellow tea roses. The groom was attended by John Weber, a cousin of the bride, as best man.

After the ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's father. Those who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Peter Wies, Mr. and Mrs. Simondel of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Konow, Mr. E. Carroll, Mrs. Fred Carroll of Russell, Kansas, Mr. and Mrs. Christ Rasmussen and Mrs. N. Cassidy of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Carroll and son of Russell, Kansas, Mrs. Matt Weber, Sr., Mrs. Thomas Welter, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jungles, and son, of Lemont, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Welter, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jungles and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Sievert, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carroll and family, Mrs. Barney Welter and children, Mrs. Geo. White and Mrs. Elsie DuBois.

New Lenox Defeats Gravel Tax Proposition

New Lenox township voters did not take kindly to the idea of voting in favor of more taxes at the town election Tuesday and defeated the proposition for a special tax of 20 cents for road purposes. The vote stood as follows: yes 160; no 251.

The sanitarium tax was voted on favorably, the results being for 136, against 76.

The regular town ticket candidates were all elected. Their respective votes were as follows:

Town clerk, Ceward C. Batson, 1st precinct 179, 2nd 202; for tax collector, Thomas Carey, 1st 181, 2nd, 195; for assessor Homer Kemp, 1st, 178, 2nd, 201; for justices of the peace, Charles Pease, 1st, 170, 2nd, 163; James Sherwood, 1st, 119, 2nd, 135; for constable, Louis Hoffman, 1st 181, 2nd, 198; Dewey Moore, 1st, 149, 2nd, 174; for school trustee, Louis Eberhart, 1st, 177, 2nd, 196.

The name of John Sullivan was written in for justice and he received in 1st precinct 46, 2nd precinct 31.

New Lenox Realtor Active

Harvey Frick, New Lenox realtor reports a decided pickup in the real estate business. He recently sold the Harvey Reab place in Mokena to Donald Ambuhl of Mokena and this week he sold the property in New Lenox occupied by James Sherwood to Jack Godby also of New Lenox. The property in question was owned by Otto Bartels, cashier of the Mokena State Bank.

New Lenox Voters Down Educational Special Tax Fund

Last Saturday a special school election was held in New Lenox to raise taxes to increase the educational fund and also to increase the building fund and the latter measure carried. This Saturday, a president of the local Board of Education and two members are to be elected.

WOMAN SEIZED IN NEW DEATH AT INFIRMARY

Discovery of the body of another inmate of the Oak Forest infirmary who died from acute alcoholism led to the arrest Wednesday, of Mrs. Laverne Hellner, who county highway police and infirmary officials say has been peddling bootleg liquor to the inmates for years.

Mrs. Hellner, who is blind and who was formerly an inmate of the institution, was locked up in the county highway police station at Homewood. She has red hair and says she is 38 years old, but looks 50. E. C. Yellowley, director of the federal alcohol tax unit, was notified of the arrest as was the state's attorney's office.

Mrs. Hellner lives in a frame house across the street from the infirmary at 161st street and Cicero avenue in Oak Forest. A wooden sign proclaims it as the House by the Side of the Road.

"This is the end of the House by the Side of the Road," said Lieut. Fred Mulhausen of the highway police as he ripped Mrs. Hellner's saloon license from the wall. "They'll send her to prison on a federal charge of evading the liquor tax laws."

How Mrs. Hellner ever obtained the license is to be the subject of investigation. She did no business, police said, other than with the infirmary inmates, who wore a path to her back door in quest for home-made whiskey.

Joseph Novak, 67 years old, was the latest inmate to die of alcoholism and exposure as a result of a trip to the House by the Side of the Road. His body was found yesterday in a clump of bushes 200 feet south of the resort by Joe Resol, another inmate who was his drinking companion last Sunday.

Near Novak's body were three empty half pint whiskey bottles. There was another one, half full, in his pocket.

"Early Sunday morning we sneaked under the infirmary fence and went to the House by the Side of the Road," Rosol told Lieut. Mulhausen. "We rapped on the back door, then left 40 cents in a cigar box nailed up near a sliding panel in the door. We came back later and got two half pints." Rosol did not know when Novak bought the other bottles.

Searching the Hellner woman's house, Lieut. Mulhausen found ten gallons of alcohol in a garbage can hidden in a clothes closet. Two old crones said to have been employed by Mrs. Hellner to deliver booze to the infirmary fence were not in the house at the time of the police raid. There are 4,000 inmates in the infirmary. Drinking has been on the increase since some of the inmates began receiving old age pension checks.

Often when an old man is released from the infirmary and given his first check he is found in a nearby field a few days later, drunk, paralyzed, and penniless.

The GARDEN MURDER CASE

Vance rose and bowed. "Thanks for your unlimited candor, Miss Graem. I'm deuced sorry I had to torture you to obtain it. And please ignore the nightmares you accused me of manufacturing. I'm really grateful to you for helping me fill in the pattern."

The girl frowned as her intense gaze rested on Vance.

"I wonder if you don't really know more about this affair than you pretend."

"My dear Miss Graem! I do not pretend to know anything about it." Vance went to the door and held it open for her. "You may go now, but we shall probably want to see you again tomorrow, and I just ask for your promise that you will stay at home where you will be available."

"Don't worry, I'll be at home."

As she went out, Miss Beeton was coming up the passageway toward the study. The two women passed each other without speaking.

"I'm sorry to trouble you, Mr. Vance," the nurse apologized, "but Doctor Siefert has just arrived and asked me to inform you that he wished very much to see you as soon as possible. Mr. Garden," she added, "has told him about Mr. Swift's death."

At the moment her gaze fell on the tweed coat, and a slight puzzled frown lined her forehead. Before she could speak Vance said:

"The sergeant brought your coat up here. He didn't know whose it was. We were looking for something." Then he added quickly: "Please tell Doctor Siefert that I will be very glad to see him at once. And ask him if he will be good enough to come here to the study." Miss Beeton nodded and went out.

CHAPTER X

There was a soft knock, and Vance turned from the window. He was confronted by Garden, who had opened the study door without waiting for a summons.

"Sorry, Vance," Garden apologized, "but Doc Siefert is downstairs and says he'd like to see you, if convenient, before he goes."

Vance looked at the man a moment and frowned.

"Miss Beeton informed me of the fact a few minutes ago. I asked her to tell the doctor I would be glad to see him at once. I can't understand his sending you also. Didn't the nurse give him the message?"

"I'm afraid not. I know Siefert sent Miss Beeton up here, and I assumed, as I imagine Siefert did, that you had detained her." He looked round the room with a puzzled expression. "The fact is, I thought she was still up here."

"You mean she hasn't returned downstairs?" Vance asked.

"No, she hasn't come down yet."

Vance took a step forward.

"Are you sure of that, Garden?"

"Yes, very sure." Garden nodded vigorously. "I've been in the front hall, near the foot of the stairs, ever since Doc Siefert arrived."

"Did you see any of the others come down?"

"Why, yes," Garden told him. "Kroon came down and went out. And then Madge Weatherby. And shortly after the nurse had gone up with Siefert's message to you, Zala came down and hurried away. But that's all. And as I say, I've been down there in the front hall all the time."

"What about Hammle?"

"Hammle? No, I haven't seen anything of him. I thought he was still here with you."

"That's deuced queer," Vance moved slowly to a chair and sat down with a perplexed frown. "It's possible you missed him. However, it doesn't matter. Ask the doctor to come up, will you?"

When Garden had left Vance sat smoking and staring at the ceiling. I knew from the droop of his eyelids that he was disturbed.

"Deuced queer," he muttered again.

"For Heaven's sake, Vance," Markham commented irritably. "It's entirely possible Garden wasn't watching the stairs as closely as he imagines."

"Yes, Oh, yes," Vance nodded vaguely. "Everyone worried. None on the alert. Normal mechanisms not functioning. Still, the stairs are visible half way up the hall, and the hall itself isn't very spacious."

"It's quite possible Hammle went down the main stairs from the terrace, wishing, perhaps, to avoid the others."

"He hadn't his hat up here with him," Vance returned without looking up. "He would have had to enter the front hall and pass Garden to get it. No point in such silly maneuvers . . . But it isn't Hammle I'm thinking of. It's Miss Beeton. I don't like it . . ." He got up slowly and took out another cigarette. "She's not the kind of girl that would neglect taking my message to Siefert immediately, unless for a very good reason."

"A number of things might have happened—"

"Yes, of course. That's just it. Too many things have happened here today already." Vance went to the north window and looked out into the garden. Then he returned to the center of the room and stood for a moment in tense meditation.

"As you say, Markham," His voice was barely audible. "Something may have happened. . . ." Suddenly he threw his cigarette into an ash tray and turned on his heel.

"Oh, my word! I wonder. . . . Come, Sergeant. We'll have to make a search—immediately."

He opened the door quickly and started down the hall. We followed him with vague apprehension, not knowing what was on his mind and with no anticipation of what was to follow. Vance peered out through the garden door. Then he turned back, shaking his head.

"No, it couldn't have been there. We would have been able to see." His eyes moved inquiringly up and down the hall, and after a moment a strange, startled look came into them. "It could be!" he exclaimed.

"Oh, my aunt! Damnable things are happening here. Wait a second."

He rapidly retraced his steps to the vault door. Grasping the knob, he rattled it violently; but the door was now locked. Taking the key from its nail, he inserted it hurriedly into the lock. As he opened the heavy door a crack, a pungent, penetrating odor assailed his nostrils. Vance quickly drew back.

"Out into the air!" he called over his shoulder, in our direction. "All of you!"

Instinctively we made for the door to the garden.

Vance held one hand over his nose and mouth and pushed the vault door further inward. Heavy amber-colored fumes drifted out into the hall, and I felt a stifling, choking sensation. Vance staggered back a step, but kept his hand on the door-knob.

"Miss Beeton! Miss Beeton!" he called. There was no response and I saw Vance put his head down and move forward into the dense fumes that were emanating from the open door. He sank to his knees on the threshold and leaned forward into the vault. The next moment he had straightened up and was dragging the limp body of the nurse out into the passageway.

As soon as the girl was out of the vault, Vance took her up in his arms and carried her unsteadily out into the garden, where he placed her gently on the wicker settee. His face was deathly pale; his eyes were watering; and he had difficulty with his breathing. When he had released the girl, he leaned heavily against one of the iron posts which supported the awning. He opened his mouth wide and sucked the fresh air into his lungs.

The nurse was gasping stertorously and clutching her throat. Although her breast was rising and falling convulsively, her whole body was limp and lifeless.

At that moment Doctor Siefert stepped through the garden door, a look of amazement on his face. He had all the outward appearance of the type of medical man Vance had described to us the night before. He was about sixty, conservatively but modestly attired, and with a bearing studiously dignified and self-sufficient.

With a great effort Vance drew himself erect.

"Hurry, doctor," he called. "It's bromine gas."

Siefert came rapidly forward, moved the girl's body into a more comfortable position and opened the collar of her uniform.

"Nothing but the air can help her," he said, as he moved one end of the settee around so that it faced the cool breeze from the river.

"How are you feeling, Vance?"

Vance was dabbing his eyes with a handkerchief. He blinked once or twice and smiled faintly.

"I'm quite all right," He went to the settee and looked down at the girl for a moment. "A close call," he murmured.

Siefert inclined his head gravely.

At this moment Hammle came strutting up briskly from a remote corner of the garden.

"Good God!" he exclaimed. "What's the matter?"

Vance turned to the man in angry surprise.

"Well, well," he greeted him. "The roll call is complete. I'll tell you later what's the matter. Or perhaps you will be able to tell me. Wait over there." And he jerked his head in the direction of a chair nearby.

"I wish I'd taken the earlier train to Long Island," Hammle muttered.

"It might have been better, don't you know," murmured Vance, turning away from him.

The nurse's strangled coughing had abated somewhat. Her breathing was deeper and more regular, and the gasping had partly subsided. Before long she struggled to sit up. Siefert helped her.

"Breathe as deeply and rapidly as you can," he said. "It's air you need."

The girl made an effort to follow instructions, one hand braced against the back of the settee, and the other resting on Vance's arm.

A few minutes later she was able to speak, but with considerable difficulty.

"I feel—better now. Except for the burning—in my nose and throat."

"What happened?" she asked.

"We don't know yet," Vance returned her gaze with obvious distress. "We only know that you were poisoned with bromine gas in the vault where Swift was shot. We were hoping that you could tell us about it yourself."

She shook her head vaguely, and there was a dazed look in her eyes.

"I'm afraid I can't tell you very much. It all happened so unexpectedly—so suddenly. All I know is that when I went to tell Doctor Siefert he might come upstairs, I was struck on the head from behind, just as I passed the garden door. The blow didn't render me entirely unconscious, but it stunned me so that I was unaware of anything or anybody around me. Then I felt myself being caught from behind, turned about, and forced back up the passageway and into the vault. I have a faint recollection of the door being shut upon me, although I wasn't sufficiently rational to protest or even to realize what had happened. But I was conscious of the fact that inside the vault there was a frightful suffocating smell."

"Yes. Not a pleasant experience. But it could have been much worse," Vance spoke in a low voice and smiled gravely down at the girl. "There's a bad bruise on the back of your head. That too might have been worse, but the starched band of your cap probably saved you from more serious injury."

The girl had got to her feet and stood swaying a little as she steadied herself against Vance.

"I really feel all right now," She looked at Vance wistfully. "And I have you to thank—haven't I?"

Siefert spoke gruffly. "A few more minutes of that bromine gas would have proved fatal. Whoever found you and got you out here did so just in time."

The girl had not taken her eyes from Vance.

"How did you happen to find me so soon?" she asked him.

"Belated reasoning," he answered. "I should have found you several minutes before the moment I learned that you had not returned downstairs. But at first it was difficult to realize that anything serious could have happened to you."

"I can't understand it even now," the girl said with a bewildered air.

"Neither can I—entirely," returned Vance. "But perhaps I can learn something more."

Going quickly to a pitcher of water Heath had brought, he dipped his handkerchief into it. Pressing the handkerchief against his face, he disappeared into the passageway. A minute or so later he returned. In his hand he held a jagged piece of thin curved glass, about three inches long.

It was part of a broken vial, and still clinging to it was a small paper label on which was printed the symbol "Br."

"I found this on the tiled floor, in the far corner of the vault. It was just beneath one of the racks which holds Professor Garden's assortment of chemicals. There's an empty space in the rack, but this vial of bromine couldn't have fallen to the floor accidentally. It could only have been taken out deliberately and broken at the right moment." He handed the fragment of glass to Heath.

"Take this, Sergeant, and have it gone over carefully for fingerprints. But if, as I suspect, the same person that killed Swift handled it, I doubt if there will be any telltale marks on it. However . . ."

"This was a dastardly thing, Vance," Siefert burst out, his eyes flashing.

"Yes. All of that, doctor. So was Swift's murder . . . How are you feeling now, Miss Beeton?"

"A little shaky," she answered with a weak smile. "But nothing more." She was leaning against one end of the settee.

"Then we'll carry on, what?"

"Of course," she returned in a low voice.

Floyd Garden stepped out from the hallway at this moment. He coughed.

"What's this beastly odor in the hall?" he asked. "It's gotten downstairs. Is anything wrong?"

UNCOMMON AMERICANS

Christmas Flower

WHEN you buy one of those scarlet-petaled flowers called the poinsettia to add to the festive appearance of your home at Christmas time, you are helping perpetuate the fame of an American who little realized that his name would become associated with one of the symbols of the Yuletide. For Joel R. Poinsett had so many other claims to distinction that it seems curious he is best remembered because a flower bears his name!

Born in South Carolina in 1779, he studied both medicine and military science abroad but his father induced him to abandon his intention of entering the army and to become a student of law. Poor health forced him to give that up and he asked President Madison for a commission in the army. He was about to be appointed quartermaster-general when the secretary of war objected.

Instead he was sent on a diplomatic mission to South America where he mixed in the politics of Chile, and fomented revolution until he became known as "the scourge of the American continent" and was recalled. Next he was sent to Mexico. Always interested in botany, he brought back from that country the flower which was given the scientific name of "Poinsettia Pulcherrima."

Just as he had been a stormy petrel in international politics, so he was a disturbing element in the politics of his native land. During the Nullification controversy in South Carolina he organized and led the Unionist forces. By doing that he won the esteem of the national government and President Van Buren made him secretary of war.

Poinsett improved and enlarged the army, organized a general staff, built up the artillery, directed the Seminole war and managed the removal of some 40,000 Indians to Indian Territory. In the midst of this activity his scientific interests were not neglected. He experimented with scientific agriculture, sent out the Wilkes expedition into the Antarctic and was largely instrumental in founding the National Institute for the Promotion of Science and the Useful Arts which later was merged with the Smithsonian Institution. His busy career came to an end in 1851 while he was living in retirement as a plantation owner in his native state.

Brooklyn Bridge Jumper

BACK in the eighties the Brooklyn bridge was one of the wonders of the modern world. Its dedication on May 24, 1883 was an event of nation-wide interest but three years later it was even more in the news because of a man with whose name that great span has been linked in popular memory ever since.

He was Steve Brodie, bootblack, street car conductor, sailor and worker around the docks who became a professional walker as a means of earning some easy money. But he was never better than a second-rater and none of his walking matches ever benefited him greatly. In the summer of 1886 he was nearly "broke."

One day in July he heard some of his friends talking about the latest casualty among the men who had tried for fame and fortune by diving from the Brooklyn bridge to the river, 135 feet below. Seven of them had tried it and all of them had been killed.

"Huh, I bet you I could do it and not be killed," boasted Brodie. "Bet you $100 you can't!" replied a friend. "You're on!" was Brodie's answer. But he was evidently none too confident that he could make good on his boast for he took out a life insurance policy for $1,000 as a protection for his wife, just in case . . .

On July 23, 1886 Brodie jumped off the bridge and came up without a scratch. Officials of the life insurance company were furious because he had risked $1,000 of their money to win $100. They returned his premium and cancelled his policy—which was foolish, for he lived to a ripe old age!

His successful jump was widely publicized. It won him an engagement in a melodrama called "Blackmail" in which he had to dive off a great height into a net—a feat which, he declared, was even more dangerous than his jump from the bridge—and his performance in this (at $100 a week) made "Brodie, the Brooklyn Bridge-Jumper" famous all over the country. His achievement encouraged imitators and during the next few years no less than 11 others tackled the nation's most spectacular high dive. Although the first seven had perished in their attempts, Brodie seemed to have broken the jinx, for every one of the 11 survived.

By that time the novelty of such a feat had somewhat worn off. But Brodie's fame as the first to make a successful jump was secure. Moreover, he contributed another picturesque phrase to the American language, for "doing a Brodie" is still a synonym for a spectacular jump or plunge from a height.

Lesson for April 11

THE SIN OF ADAM AND EVE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 3:1-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—The soul that sinneth, it shall die. Ezek. 18:4.

PRIMARY TOPIC—In the Garden of Eden.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Trying to Hide From God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Sin Is and Does.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Consequences of Sin.

"One of the curiosities of the British Museum is a brick from the walls of ancient Babylon which bears the imprint of one of Babylon's mighty kings. Right over the center of the royal seal is deeply impressed the footprint of a 'pariah' dog which apparently trod upon it when it was soft and plastic. Long ages have passed; the king's superscription is visible but defaced; the footprint of the dog is clear and sharply defined.

"Human nature is like that brick. . . . Man originally was made in the image of God, but over the royal beauty of the Divine likeness there has been superimposed the dirty disfigurement of the Devil's imprint" (D. E. Hart-Davies).

Last Sunday we saw the heavens and earth, the animals, yes, the entire creation crowned by man himself, as it had come from the hand of God—"and behold it was very good" (1:31). But, sadly enough, it did not long remain so, for sin which had already entered the universe soon found its way into the world.

God created Adam in his own likeness and image, gave him "a helpmeet unto him," and placed him in perfect surroundings. He gave him congenial employment, and above all the inestimable privilege of fellowship with Him.

But because man was not a mere automaton—a toy in the hands of a superior being—God gave him the power of moral choice, the opportunity to exercise his God-given personality in making that choice. Obedience is the underlying moral principle of the universe.

Today we go with Eve and Adam into that cataclysmic experience which we call "the Fall of Man," for as we read in Romans 5:12, "by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned."

I. Temptation (vv. 1-5).

Satan is not a cloven-footed monster with a forked tail and a trident in his hand. No, indeed, he is more subtle than anything in creation. We read that he is "transformed into an angel of light" (II Cor. 11:14). His approach in our day is as smooth, and cultured as it was in the garden of Eden. An example is the insidious liquor advertising of our day. Another is his use of the man who stands behind the pulpit or sits in the professor's chair and destroys the Christian faith of young men and women.

Note the five steps in the fall of man:

1. Listening to a slander against God (Satan lied about God).
2. Doubting God's Word and love (If we trust God we will obey him).
3. Looking at that which God has forbidden (The eye will betray us unless we guard it).
4. Lusting after what God had prohibited (Compare Genesis 3:6 with I John 2:6).
5. Disobedience to God's command.

II. Sin (v. 6).
Sin is deliberate transgression, not a natural weakness, nor a necessity. It showed itself in its true light when it at once reached out and dragged down another. We do not sin alone for very long.

III. Consequences (vv. 7-15, also 16-19).

1. The serpent is cursed.
2. Sin, death and condemnation, enter the world.
3. Sorrow is linked with motherhood.
4. Responsibility and headship is given to man.
5. The ground is cursed and the burden of labor introduced.

IV. Redemption (v. 15).

Here we have the first promise of redemption, and the scarlet thread of redemptive truth thus runs from this point at the Bible's beginning to its very last chapter. Even in judging the first Adam for his sin God promises the coming of the second Adam who is to redeem the race. You are in the family of the first Adam by natural birth; have you entered the family of the second Adam by supernatural rebirth? (I Cor. 15:21, 22, 45.)

Employing Character

A good character when established should not be rested in as an end, but only employed as a means of doing still further good.—Atterbury.

Punishment That Hardens

If punishment makes not the will supple, it hardens the offender.—Locke.

To Have Friendship

The only way to have a friend is to be one.—Emerson.

Enchanting Gifts of Lacy Crochet

A chance at rare beauty—genuine luxury—is yours in this lovely crocheted lace cloth! Just a 6 inch medallion crocheted in string forms it—you'll have a quantity of them together in no time. And what lovely gifts you can make of them—chair sets, scarfs, pil-

"Quotations"

One of the most valuable of all kinds of self-mastery is the power of switching off thoughts at the bidding of the will.—Dean Inge.

The man who is a law unto himself is not a social or, strictly speaking, a moral creature.—Wickham Steed.

Surely there's no actor who's ever satisfied with his work, who doesn't see all kinds of mistakes he'd like to correct.—Sir Cedric Hardwicke.

The will to live is often more powerful than any drug. When the will gives in the body surrenders.—Bruce Barton.

Belief in God is the real solution for our problems, national and international.—Bishop Manning.

Stomach Gas So Bad Seems To Hurt Heart

"The gas on my stomach was so bad I could not eat or sleep. Even my heart seemed to hurt. A friend suggested Adierka. The first dose I took brought me relief. Now I eat as I wish, sleep fine and never feel better."—Mrs. Jas. Filler.

Adierka acts on BOTH upper and lower bowels while ordinary laxatives act on the lower bowel only. Adierka gives your system a thorough cleansing, bringing out old, poisonous matter that you would not believe was in your system and that has been causing gas pains, sour stomach, nervousness and headaches for months.

Dr. H. L. Shoup, New York, reports: "In addition to intestinal cleansing, Adierka greatly reduces bacteria and colon bacilli." Give your bowels a REAL cleansing with Adierka and see how good you feel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and stubborn constipation. At all Leading Druggists.

Govern Your Thoughts

'Tis in thy power to think as thou wilt.—Walter Pater.

A FAMOUS DOCTOR

AS a young man, Dr. R. V. Pierce practiced medicine in Adams County, Ill. After moving to Buffalo, N. Y., he gave to the drug trade (nearly 70 years ago) Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Women who suffer from "nerves," irritability, and other troubles associated with functional disturbances should try this tonic. It stimulates the appetite and this in turn increases the intake of food, helping to rebuild the body. Buy now! Tabs. 50c, liquid $1.00 and $1.35.

Household Questions

Boiling Cabbage — When you cook cabbage, put a small handful of breadcrumbs tied in muslin into the pan. The bread absorbs all the bitter juices and makes the vegetable more digestible.

Washing Embroidery — Do not wring embroidery after washing. Press out as much moisture as possible between the folds of a towel, then spread on a towel or blotter to dry, face up.

Cocoa Egg Cake Filling — White of one egg; one cup icing sugar; two teaspoons cold water; four tablespoons cocoa; half teaspoon vanilla. Beat white of egg until stiff and dry. Mix cocoa and sugar, add cold water. Add gradually to egg white until thick enough to spread.

Sausage and Fried Apples — Pan broil the required number of small sausages or cakes of sausage meat and as soon as the fat collects, add as many halved, cored and unpeeled apples as required, first dipping them in flour to which a little sugar has been added. Sauté slowly until soft and browned. Place on a serving dish, with two small sausages on each half.

Baking Potatoes — Before putting potatoes in the baking-tin, stand them in boiling water for a few minutes, then drain on a clean cloth. They will cook more quickly and taste better.

Suede Shoes — Rain spots can be removed from suede shoes by rubbing with fine emery board.

Cooking Vegetables — A small piece of butter added to the water in which vegetables are to be cooked will prevent them from boiling over.

Worn Socks — Children very often get enormous holes in the heels of their socks. This is often due to the lining of the shoe which has worn rough. If the ragged bits are cut off and the inside of the shoe covered with adhesive tape, many a large "hole" will be prevented.

Flavoring Gravy — Half milk and half water makes the best colored and best flavored gravy.

Ironing Shirts — Soft collars attached to shirts should be ironed on the right side first, then on the wrong side. This prevents wrinkling the collar.

Mr. Pete Sluiter Asst. Superintendent

Ninety-six million children in this great nation of ours, or practically one half of all the children in the nation, do not receive any religious training of any kind.

Remember, we are called, "The Christian Nation." Are we?

Are your children among the 96 million? Is it a parent's duty to give their children a religious training? Do we live up to the following:

"I must be fit for a child to follow, Scorning the places where loose men wallow."

"Knowing how much they shall learn from me,

"I must be fair as I'd have them to be;

"I must come home to them, day by day,

"Clean as the morning I went away."

Send or take them to Sunday School on Sundays.

HOMER

Mrs. Fred Kopelman

The Wayside Worker's Circle of Kings Daughters, held their April meeting Thursday in the church parlors. Plans were made to have a Mother and Daughter banquet on Wednesday evening May 5. The following committees were appointed to have charge: Decorations, Mrs. H. R. Jay and Mrs. Fred Trask. Dinner: Mrs. H. B. Reed, Mrs. Harry Parker and Mrs. Walter Ott. Program: Mrs. Bigelow and Miss Myra Reed.

The many friends of Mr. Cass Ludwig are pleased to learn that he is resting nicely since his operation. The fore part of January, Mr. Ludwig featured in an auto accident and has been confined in St. Joseph hospital, since with a broken leg and infection. Thursday, it was found necessary to amputate the leg a few inches below the knee. He has a host of friends who are hoping for a speedy recovery.

HOW LONG CAN A THREE-QUARTER WIFE HOLD HER HUSBAND?

YOU have to work at marriage to make a success of it. Men may be selfish, unsympathetic, but that's the way they're made and you might as well realize it.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and Go "Smiling Through."

When in a hurry, instead of rolling and cutting biscuit dough, simply drop into small muffin pans and bake as biscuits. It saves time and the biscuits are uniform in size.

Before putting fresh-cut flowers in a vase, cut the stems under water and leave under water for one-half hour. Flowers so treated will keep fresh much longer.

GINGER ALE ICE made the "agitated way" is a delicious treat; and it is so quickly frozen when made in one of the new easy-to-operate ice cream freezers. To make, dissolve 1 cup granulated sugar in 1 cup boiling water and cool. Add ¼ cup lemon juice, ¼ cup orange juice and 1 pint ginger ale. Assemble modern ice cream freezer. Pour the mixture into the freezing container; adjust dasher and cover tightly. Then fill the ice chamber with a mixture of chipped ice and salt. (Use 3 parts ice to 1 part salt by volume. Remember, the right combination of ice and salt is one of the factors that make for quick freezing.) When frozen, remove ice around top of container, carefully remove cover and lift out the dasher. Pack carefully with a spoon. Then cover container with wax paper and replace lid. Drain off water and replenish ice and salt mixture. Cover and allow to harden at least one hour before serving.

By turning partly-used jars of peanut butter, syrup, mayonnaise and so forth upside down, their contents will stay fresh longer. The lids, of course, must be screwed on tightly.

MOKENA SCHOOL BAND NEWS

The band members are all smiling very happily these days for we are quite proud of the beautiful red capes our mothers are making for us.

These capes over an all white outfit make an attractive uniform and will be worn for our First Annual Concert April 30th.

We are all working very hard and having extra rehearsals each week so that our concert will be a musical success. Wednesday night our parents had their regular business meeting and we played several selections for their entertainment. All of the parents were pleased with our music and some were really surprised at the great improvement we had made since we last played for them.

Here I am, rambling along and perhaps telling too much but our band work is such an interesting experience that we are anxious for you to know all about it and will tell you more each week thru the columns of this newspaper.

THE BAND SCRIBE

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lauffer entertained the 500 card club in their home last Saturday evening. Prizes were awarded to Mrs. Lawrence Kohl, Mrs. Bert Spiess, Hugh Deadmore and August Hauck.

Mrs. Martin Jungles entertained the ENO 500 card club in her home Wednesday afternoon.

MOKENA BAND ASSOCIATION

The regular meeting of the Mokena Band Parents Association was held Wednesday evening.

The band played several marches and novelty numbers by so doing surprised the parents greatly by their great improvement.

Plans were completed to hold a band concert the last of this month. Mrs. Bernard Benson was appointed to the Ways and Means chairmanship, which was made vacant by the resignation of Mrs. H. Bruns, who is ill.

Mrs. Geo. Rinke gave a pleasing report of the joint meeting of the four bands which met in the New Lenox school Monday evening to further the plans for the July Four-celebration.

A hand made quilt, quilted by Mrs. Paul Roessner, which will be awarded at the band concert, was displayed. It is a thing of beauty.

Mrs. Walter Olson, Mrs. John Nordell and Mrs. L. G. Clark were appointed on a committee to attend to the buying of the uniforms for the band members.

Around The Town

A reader wants to know who that nice looking gal is who lives on Pine street.

Looks like Willard H. was the center of attraction Wednesday night out in the country.

Who are these two new Lenox gals who like to roll about on country roads late at night? Could it possibly be you D. P. & B. M.—

F. H. would like to know what H. M. was doing at the Floyd home Sunday evening?

C. T. and A. M. appear to be hitting it off fine.

Someone claims the loveship between A. O. and L. B. is headed for shallow grounds.

J. F. doesn't get to see H. F. now that the basketball season is over.

Suze is quite interested and would like to know who escorted his gal home Wednesday night?

G. O. seems quite interested in this B. M.—R. D. affair. Not jealous are you G.?

Now that M. T. has moved Bob Mc. will be looking up a new gal friend.

From all reports Roller skating at the Armory is quite a sport for the New Lenox younger generation.

A reader wants to know who these two gals are who like to go riding every night with Si?

W. H., we hear is that way about Bette.

Audrey H. goes for her boy friends new car.

B. K. wants to know how the cherry pie was Sunday that De made?

I. S. and M. S. have taken a liking to writing for this column.

H. M. got a mysterious phone call Sunday evening and it's worrying her.

It seem's Eddie S. is so enthused over his gal Ev. A. when he takes her out he forgets about the gas tank.

ORLAND

Real estate in Orland township is moving at a good pace. The Bartlett Real Estate Co., have been making many sales of late. Last Sunday eight 10 acre tracts were sold in the vicinity of Alpine where over fourteen new houses have been built. If Alpine keeps up this gait, it will regain its former glory of 30 years ago. Considerable property has been sold on Harlem avenue and from present indications, it looks as tho this section is in for a good sized real estate boom.

David Agate prominent farmer of Orland township is seriously ill in his home with pneumonia. He has been ill for two weeks.

The Orland Park village board will hold their semi-monthly meeting next Monday night.

The annual school election will be held in the Orland Park school this Saturday night to elect one director for a full term.

Christ Roemer suffered a paralytic stroke Monday. This is the second stroke he has suffered within a few months.

While Mrs. Hattie Doak was assisting in serving at the Russell Myrick golden wedding celebration last week, she accidentally cut a finger with a knife inflicting a deep gash which took three stitches to close.

Mrs. Lizzie Arnold has been ill the past few weeks, but is somewhat improved.

J. F. Schmadeke is able to be back in his store after siege of pneumonia.

Last Friday, The Orland Park PTA held a bunco party in the school auditorium. A good time is reported by all those attending.

The regular Child Welfare Clinic will be held in the Orland public school on the afternoon of April 16.

ORLAND SCHOOL NEWS

For the "Open House" to be held in our school Tuesday April 27, we have arranged the following schedule:

7:30—8:10: Class demonstrations in the primary, intermediate, grammar and high schools.

8:10—8:30: intermission for looking at exhibits in the different rooms.

8:30—9:10: high school play, "This Way Out", in the auditorium.

"This Way Out" is a rural comedy in one act by Mrs. Carl Felton. In her preface to the play, the author writes that she hopes the comedy "will do its bit toward causing people to forget their troubles and laugh a bit". The cast of characters is as follows: Mrs. Morton, a sweet motherly woman, long a sufferer from the thoughtless relatives and friends, Ruth Arnold.

Linda, her young, appealing daughter, Marie Heitig.

Bob Simms, the attractive young doctor who has recently moved to the neighborhood, Donald Uthe.

Mrs. Preston, the middle-aged cousin from the city, Lila Enders.

Mable, her blase daughter who has followed Bob to the country, Mae Reish.

Junior, her son, a peppy 10-year old, William McAleer.

Billy Elkin has moved to Chicago but is commuting to and from Orland Park. We are glad Billy can continue with us until the end of the semester as we miss him when absent—especially the geometry class.

During recreation, the past week, the high school boys have had a series of boxing and wrestling matches in the school auditorium.

ILLINOIS
BREVITIES

N. E. Dennison, fifty-six years old, former editor and publisher of the Tampico Tornado, died.

Mrs. Mary E. Primm, eighty-four, grandniece of Thomas Carlin, governor of Illinois in 1839, died at Carrollton.

Eugene Moore, twenty, of Mount Vernon, was killed in an automobile accident. His car struck a tree and overturned.

Charles C. Arnold, sixty years old, three times mayor of East Peoria, and publisher of the East Side News, died after two weeks' illness.

Mrs. Minnie Peltz, widow of the late B. F. Peltz, former publisher of the Clinton Daily Journal, died following several years of ill health.

Rev. Charles E. Raymond of Peoria, eighty-four years old, retired clergyman, died of pneumonia. He was known as the "marrying parson."

Cocktails made by pouring liquor into the high school party punch brought the suspension of 14 students of the Sycamore Community high school.

Phil S. Hanna, Chicago, and Charles Wham, Centralia, have been nominated for the presidency of the University of Illinois Alumni association.

Henry Voges, seventy-three years old, was killed and Edwin Guebert injured at Redbud when a truck driven by Guebert crashed into a stalled truck.

Rev. August C. Kroesche, seventy-one, retired minister of the Reformed church, died at German Valley. He had held pastorates at Pekin, Ill.; Muscoda and Madison, Wis.

Teachers of grade schools in Brookport have volunteered services, without pay for an additional month of school which they are to teach to make up for the month of February, during which schools were closed, because of the flood. They had received pay for February.

After paying $1,450 in special assessments for paving, water, etc., William Radley of Bloomington learned that his three lots are separated from the street by an apparently ownerless six foot strip of ground. He asked city council for the right to assume ownership of the strip.

Headed by Gov. Henry Horner and an official delegation of legislators, probably the largest crowd in Clinton's history joined to pay last tribute to State Senator Louis O. Williams. Senator Williams died in Springfield of automobile injuries received March 12 near Buffalo, Ill.

Dr. Alfred Stocker, of Rock Island, the first tri-city physician to enlist in the world war, died of a heart attack. During his military service Dr. Stocker was promoted from a lieutenant to a captain in recognition of his work in fighting influenza and meningitis in southern army camps.

William E. White of Springfield, for seventeen years assistant to Francis G. Blair, former state superintendent of schools, died at Fuller hospital in Bloomington of pneumonia. Surviving besides the widow are a daughter, Genevieve, who teaches English at Illinois Wesleyan university, and two sons, Harris of New York City and Marden of Whitehall.

Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman of Harvey was elected regent of the Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution at the forty-first annual state conference in Galesburg. Mrs. Philip L. Mathisen, Chicago, was elected chaplain; Mrs. Thomas E. Maury, Aurora, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward J. Fibey, Urbana, registrar, and Mrs. Richard Kemp, Kewanee, historian. Other officers are unchanged.

Mrs. Annie Thompson Boorde, seventy-six years old, wife of E. J. Boorde, owner of the Hoopston Telephone company, died after a long illness. She was a sister of the late John R. Thompson, Sr., Chicago restaurant owner, and an aunt of John R. Thompson, Jr., present president of the John R. Thompson company. She also was a sister of the late Circuit Judge M. W. Thompson. She was active in the Daughters of the American Revolution.

The Kathleen mine of the Union Colliery company at Dowell, five miles south of Duquoin, set a new record by producing 5,818 tons of coal in seven hours. The mine is one of the largest in southern Illinois.

Illinois and Chicago were presented at a luncheon in the Hotel Sherman, Chicago, with National Safety council awards for promotion of traffic safety during 1936. Illinois ranked first in class A of the 40 competing states and Chicago ranked third among cities of 500,000 and over.

Otis Smith, fifty-three-year-old barber of Raymond, was killed at the town's main railroad crossing when his automobile was struck by a Wabash railroad passenger train. Surviving are his widow and four children.

The Illinois highway division reported motor vehicle drivers were responsible for 66.3 per cent of 15,765 traffic accidents in this state last year which resulted in injuries or deaths. Careless pedestrians were blamed for 26.8 per cent; 6.9 per cent was charged to other causes.

Home That the Duke of Windsor May Lease

There are reports in Baltimore that the Duke of Windsor is negotiating a lease on this home of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner A. Parker on the Falls road, in the picturesque Green Spring valley where Wallis Warfield Simpson spent many happy days during her childhood. Although these reports have been denied by a spokesman for the former British king, it was still regarded as probable that the duke plans to bring his bride to her native land for their honeymoon.

PETER RABBIT BEGINS TO HAVE DOUBTS.

PETER RABBIT had been very much excited when he had seen poor, helpless Mrs. Grouse carried away by Farmer Brown's boy. When he had led Farmer Brown's boy to the place where Mrs. Grouse was a prisoner under the hard, icy snow crust he had supposed that when he broke through it Mrs. Grouse would promptly fly away. He hadn't dreamed that she was too weak to fly. And so when she had been picked up and carried off Peter hadn't known what to think. Somehow he felt quite sure that no harm would come to her, for ever since he had seen Tommy Tit the Chickadee eat from the hand of Farmer Brown's boy, Peter had thought more kindly of him. And then, too, during these hard times when food was so hard to find Farmer Brown's boy had left cabbage leaves and turnips and carrots where Peter Rabbit could find them. No, he couldn't believe that any harm was going to come to Mrs. Grouse and he said as much to every one who repeated to him the dreadful, false story Sammy Jay had told of how Mrs. Grouse had been killed and taken home by Farmer Brown's boy for his dinner.

But when one day went by, and then another and another, without any sign of Mrs. Grouse, and when Tommy Tit had made several trips up to Farmer Brown's dooryard and reported that he saw nothing of Mrs. Grouse, although he looked everywhere, Peter began to have doubts. Yes, sir, Peter began to have doubts. He even went up to the dooryard himself one moonlit night without any result save to have a terrible scare when Bowser the

Taking No Chances

The mother of this charming baby, photographed in London, was taking no chances with the epidemic of flu in the English capital.

Hound surprised him and drove him into the old stone wall on the edge of the Old Orchard.

Every day Sammy Jay hunted up Peter, and said unpleasant things. "What did I tell you?" said Sammy with a wicked chuckle. "What did I tell you, Peter Rabbit? If Mrs. Grouse hasn't been killed and eaten, where is she? What has become of her? Tell me that!"

Of course Peter couldn't. It was what he wanted to know himself. All he could say was "I don't believe it, and you haven't any business to tell such dreadful stories when you don't know any more about it than I do; so there, Sammy Jay!"

Sammy would fly away laughing a harsh, unpleasant laugh. It always tickles him to tease Peter and make him feel uncomfortable. And Peter did feel uncomfortable. You see, in spite of himself, that little doubt kept growing and growing. He just couldn't help it. Peter wouldn't harm anybody for the world, and he wouldn't bring harm to anybody, not even to Reddy or Old Granny Fox unless it was to save his own life and yet he has reason enough to wish them harm, for they had given him enough terrible frights to have made any kind of bad wishes excusable. But Peter isn't that kind. And now he was beginning to blame himself for having led Farmer Brown's boy to the place where Mrs. Grouse had been a prisoner. "She might have got out some other way," said Peter to himself, though right down in his heart he

RENOVATING OLD FLOORS

A WELL made floor, properly finished and kept in good condition, is an asset to a house, and contributes greatly to its appearance. On the other hand, floors that are in poor condition, rough and worn, give an air of shabbiness to a house and its furnishings, however elaborate these may be.

A floor of good wood can be done over at no great expense. The job should start with scraping, which is easily and quickly done by an electric floor machine. This machine cuts off the old finish, grinds down the roughnesses, and discloses a new wood surface that can be finished in any desired color and manner. Such cleaning sometimes brings out unknown beauties. I know of one century-old house that was being renovated by a new owner. The floors of the living-room and dining-room were almost black with many coats of stain and varnish. On resurfacing them with a floor machine, the floors developed to be of exceptionally fine parquet; a most welcome disclosure for which the owners were entirely unprepared.

Old floors of soft wood may be too badly worn for much to be done with them. Also, in such floors, cracks are likely to have developed between the boards. In such cases new flooring can be laid on top. The first step should be the scraping of the old floor to provide a smooth and level surface on which the new can be laid.

Flooring of oak and maple in any one of several grades can be had in thin boards to be nailed on the old floor over a lining of building paper. With the old floor providing the necessary strength, the new is little more than a finish to take the wear. Parquet flooring can also be used.

For many rooms, linoleum makes an excellent finish. Rubber or asphalt tile can also be used. These materials, especially linoleum and rubber, can be had in good design and color, and will give long serv-

It helps folks try to do their best And mend their evil ways."

It was Tommy Tit speaking, and you know Tommy practices what he preaches. Peter sighed. "I'm trying to, Tommy, I'm trying to! But what do you suppose has become of Mrs. Grouse? Sometimes I think she is safe and sometimes I think—well, I don't know what I do think. I'm full of doubts," said Peter.

"Dee, dee, think the best, Peter! Think the best! That's what I do." And with this Tommy Tit flew over to the Old Orchard.

by Dr. George D. GreerDO WOMEN "FEEL BAD" MORE THAN MEN DO?

SOME women seem to "feel bad" all the time, and popular opinion has it that women, in general, feel this way more than do men; but the findings of scientists show just the opposite. A study of 413 undergraduates recently showed that the "euphoria" (feeling of well-being) among the women was considerably above that of the men. It was also found that the women got about an hour more sleep daily than the men and that the men who got eight hours or more sleep daily had a much higher average of feeling well than those who got less than eight hours' sleep. It is believed by the investigators that the amount of sleep definitely affects the feeling we have toward ourselves and toward life in general. Perhaps this is the cause of "Blue Monday."

SOMEWHERE
THE ROSES

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE woods will soon be full of flow'rs,
Blossoms that never will be ours,
Chained to the city by some duty.
But I am glad that there is beauty
In this old world, however far
From all things beautiful we are.

And I have never been so sad
That one thought has not made me glad:
That in the world were fairer places,
And in the world were happier faces,

Whatever trouble I had known,
The disappointment was my own.
Whatever griefs may overcome
Myself, it is not so with some.
Somewhere the woods are full of roses,
Someone at night in peace reposes,
Somehow the world is very blest,
If not for me, then for the rest.

BY NOW, if you have been reading the preceding lessons attentively, and have made practical application of the principles outlined, you will have found the forefinger uncanny in its disclosures of power and purpose. For these two qualities of the personality are here, perhaps, more definitely indicated than in any other major element of the hand.

The Painstaking Finger of Jupiter.

Until one has learned to differentiate the characteristics found in this element of hand-study, there is a tendency to confuse this type with the Overcautious Finger of Jupiter described in Lesson 25. In both these types the outstanding feature is the irregularity of the finger itself and its decided bend toward the second figure.

The painstaking type, however, is indicated by length that is far greater than that of the overcautious forefinger. Also its inclination toward the second finger is much less angular. The joints are knotty, which gives the finger its irregular contour, and the space between the nail joint and the nail tip is often of quite unusual length.

A forefinger of this type often has the thumb lying close to it, even when the hand is widely extended, a characteristic which emphasizes the indications of slow but sure thoroughness.

The man or woman with this type of forefinger is sure to be scrupulously exact in all matters intrusted to his or her care. And while initiative may seem to be lacking, perseverance and clear thinking may be counted upon to compensate for what otherwise would be a real deficiency in the personality.

Chicken Stew

Divide a chicken, stew until tender, and remove to hot platter. To the stock add one-half cupful of rice and dumplings made as follows:

Beat one egg, add one-half cupful of water, pinch of salt, and sufficient flour to make a thin batter; drop by spoonfuls into the stock and cook about ten minutes. If rice is uncooked it should be boiled twenty minutes before dumplings are added.

of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

THE HIGH WALL

By KARL GRAYSON
© Associated Newspapers.
WNU Service.

THE high wall had for many years excited my interest. Behind it, I knew, there reposed a great white house, an enormous barn, numerous out-buildings, several acres of land, gardens and no end of rare shrubs and exotic plants. Vaguely I remembered having been told that the owner of all this was a man named Means — Dana Means, a stern-faced, cantankerous individual, who lived apart from his fellows and about whom most folks seemed to know little and care less.

It was not, however, until last week, when old man Means died at the age of eighty-one, that I heard the full story of his life. Len Dyer, who had spent thirty years in old Dana's employ, gave me the tale.

"Oh, yes, he was rich all right," Len said in reply to my question. "Reckon Dana musta been worth a million dollars or so."

"Who will inherit the fortune?" I asked. "Do his kinsfolk live here in Silver Creek?"

Len wagged his head and regarded me curiously. "Old Dana had no kinsfolk, or leastwise none that people knew about. I reckon the money'll go to the town, eventually." He paused to cackle mirthlessly. "The old boy would turn over in his grave if he knew. It's funny how things turn out, ain't it?"

"Well," I said, "it all depends on how you define the word 'funny.' Personally I can see little that's funny about a lonely old man dying and having no relatives to mourn his passing. Why, I've heard there was scarcely a handful of people at the funeral service."

"Less'n that," said Len. "The reason for it was this: . . . And so, at last, I heard the story of old Dana Means.

"Dana was born and brung up in Silver Creek," Len went on. "His ma died at childbirth, and his pa was killed two years later, hit by a railroad train down at the crossing. Dana was adopted by Chris Andrews and his wife. The Andrews were farmers, and when Dana grew up Chris put him to work in the fields. They came from old Yankee stock, these Andrews, and they abided by the doctrine that hard work and regular church attendance was all a man needed to become a noble and respected citizen.

"Dana was allowed to attend school only three years, then he was taken out and made to work on the farm. He had enough learnin', Chris figured, to make a good farmer out of him.

"Dana stayed with the Andrews ten years after he was taken out of school. Then he ran away. You see, even at that age the kid had become bitter. He'd never been allowed to attend any of the social functions in the village or to play with other kids. The youngsters who were better off than he, those who had mothers and fathers and who attended school and wore decent clothes and attended parties and didn't have to work all the time—those youngsters looked down on him. They jeered at him and made fun of him.

"So Dana ran away, and no one saw him nor hair of him for nearly thirty-five years. When he came back, he arrived in a limousine, with a chauffeur and a footman. Oh, he made a great showing, he did. Folks who were gathered around Lindsay's general store that day fairly gaped in amazement, and when they learned who the wealthy and dignified stranger was they remembered when he was a kid living on Chris Andrews' farm, and they came up to him and tried to shake his hand and welcome him back, sort of.

"But Dana sneeringly refused to shake hands. He remained aloof and contemptuous and greatly superior. You see, he hadn't forgotten. That day he'd run away he'd had just one purpose in mind—to make himself rich. He'd got the idea that the only way a chap could win the respect and admiration of his fellows was to become wealthy. And that's what the kid had resolved to do—to make himself rich, and then return to his home town and lord it over the people who had sneered at and ridiculed him because he was an orphan.

"Dana's return to Silver Creek certainly caused a lot of excitement and when he purchased the old Chris Andrews place (both Chris and his wife had since died) they were for the most part pleased to think that at last the town was to have a wealthy and distinguished citizen. Their pleasure, however, was short-lived, for Dana soon made it clear that the thought farthest from his mind was to become a public benefactor. There was nothing in his heart but the desire for vengeance.

"The week after Dana's advent to Silver Creek, workmen arrived and began building the high wall. It took six months to complete it, and while it was in the process of construction other workmen were busy remodeling the old farm house. A regular castle Dana built for himself, with gardens and pools, great sweeping lawns and veritable forests of rare shrubs, a place unequalled in beauty anywhere around. But no one benefited by it but Old Dana himself, for the high wall shut it off from the rest of the world and few, indeed, were ever permitted to enter the grounds.

"The high wall shut Dana off from the world, too, for he lived there in solitude, a hard and bitter and revengeful old man. At first folks couldn't understand him. They thought when he loaned money and bought up mortgages and took leases on property, that he was being generous. It wasn't until he forced those same mortgages, pressed his loans, forced people from their homes that they realized what he was up to. Yes, sir, that was Dana's method of humbling the kids, now full grown, who had jeered at him. Before long he owned more land than anybody this side of the state line, and he owned mortgages on half the property in town.

"Then folks woke up and Dana came to realize he'd figured wrong. At first, when they let him alone, when they failed to come begging and pleading for mercy he couldn't understand it.

"He merely smiled to himself and sat back to wait. But his waiting went into years. Gradually he foreclosed all his mortgages and found no one would sell him more. He found that the town was getting on serenely without him, despite hard times. He found that folks had forgotten he existed, that behind the high wall he was as much apart from them as he had been after he'd run away.

"And so he became more bitter and hateful, and more hated too. He wanted Silver Creek to depend on him. He tried various methods to bring about such a state of affairs. He refused to pay assessments, balked on taxes, tried to defeat every movement that was inaugurated for public welfare. He hired secret agents, bought more land, refused to sell it when the town needed it for public buildings. And still the citizens paid him only a minimum of heed.

"Dana's hatred for them increased because he came to realize that no man can remain aloof from his fellows, because he found himself helplessly unable to achieve his purpose, to impress the people he hated. Instead of making the community depend on him he had come to depend on it.

"The old man's determination to live independent of society, yet to make society dependent on him, continued to the very end. He died last week, and only a handful of people attended the burial services. And now that he's gone the people of Silver Creek have at last become aware of his presence. Why? Well, because they want his money and his lands. And they'll get 'em, too. All sorts of schemes are afoot, suits for back taxes and claims for unpaid bills and assessments. Oh, it'll be a tough fight in the courts, but the folks of Silver Creek will win. They're bound to. And the community will benefit by old Dana's wealth, whether he wants it or not."

Len ended his tale and looked across to the high wall, above which the cupola of the great white house was barely visible. There was a strange expression in his eyes, and I left him. I went away, feeling somehow dispirited and depressed. The story of Old Dana hadn't been a pleasant thing to hear.

Some time later, back home, I was looking through a copy of a metropolitan paper which carried news of distant rural communities, and I came across an item which aroused my interest. The item concerned the reading of the will of the late Dana Means of Silver Creek. The testament provided that all the old man's property, personal and real, was to go to the town of Silver Creek to be used as the town government saw fit.

Light From the Sky Is Reflected Upon the Sea

Old riddles of the sea—why it is so blue, why ships and cliffs near the horizon sometimes have no reflection in the water and why black clouds on the rim of vision do not darken the sea until they are high in the sky—are explained by Dr. E. O. Hulburt, physicist of the Naval Research Laboratory, Washington. Dr. Hulburt was not just trying to solve riddles. As a practical result of his experimental observations there has been developed an optical filter which improves marine vision with binoculars and sextants.

He studied the optical properties of normal seas with moderate waves at a distance of several hundred yards from the observer to the horizon. The area is most important to the mariner.

Light from the sky reflected off the waves, he found, is strongly polarized and the light from the rim of a breezy sea is mainly sky light reflected from a region about 25 to 35 degrees above the horizon. The reflecting facets of the waves are thus only at an angle of about 15 degrees from the horizontal.

For this reason a ship coming over the horizon may be seen directly without having any reflection in the water. Similarly black clouds do not start to turn the sea black as soon as they come over the horizon but only do so when they reach an altitude of about 25 degrees.

Using special polarizing filters on marine binoculars and sextants, Dr. Hulburt was able to cut out much of the polarized glare from the sea's surface and render the horizon more distinct with resulting increased accuracy of navigating sights.

National Topics Interpreted
By WILLIAM BRUCKART
NATIONAL PRESS BLDG. WASHINGTON, D. C.

Washington—Throughout history, sound economic policies have had Experience a way of demonstrating their unsoundness by the results that eventually become understandable to the rank and file of the people. Likewise, throughout history the rank and file of the people have learned their lesson each time and have avoided burning their fingers a second time. That is, fingers were not burned a second time until a new generation came along and refused to examine and take into account the lessons of experience.

Lately, we have seen another such demonstration. We have seen both the results and the refusal of current leaders to profit by experiences of the past. I refer particularly to conditions involving United States bonds. Those who have followed market quotations must recognize that United States bonds and other securities issued by the treasury have suffered from fluctuations in prices that portend, if, indeed, they do not prove that federal financial policies of the last four years were unsound. There was propaganda from official quarters during one of the periods of sagging prices that the condition resulted from market manipulations and the activities of "tipsters." Stories to this effect came directly out of the treasury although they did not carry the identity of the official who made the statements.

The whole circumstance must be considered together, however, if one is to arrive at any sort of a conclusion concerning the true state of affairs. One must think of the total amount of government securities outstanding—something like thirty-four billions—and one must recognize as well what is going on in commerce and industry. In addition to these factors, attention must be given to conditions of the last several years when the Roosevelt administration was engaged—and still is engaged—in the greatest orgy of spending that our nation ever has known. When you add up these various factors, you get an answer which seems to me to be irrefutable.

In the first place, no nation nor any of its individuals can go on indefinitely spending money when it does not have that money. That is, it cannot spend more than its income over any extended period without suffering bad results. Our nation did that. It made up the difference between its income and its spending by borrowing. It gave government bonds to those from whom it borrowed, evidence of its debt. The immediate result of this condition was that there are millions upon millions of government bonds held by banks, corporations and individuals. These bonds bear an exceedingly low rate of interest.

It is only natural that anyone with money to lend will look for the highest interest rate they can get. If they happen to hold government bonds, those bonds will be dumped in favor of securities paying higher returns. That has happened to some extent already.

It is to be remembered as well that these bonds were issued in the currency of the devalued dollar, the fifty-nine cent dollar as measured by the value of gold.

Now, the law of supply and demand that has always operated and which always will operate places a basic value upon commodities, upon the services of labor. It is operating again and has brought about a greater demand for commodities, the things we need to eat or to wear and the countless items of modern day living. The prices of these, measured in present currency, are higher because it takes almost two of the present day dollars to buy the same quantity as formerly could be purchased with the dollar that was good for one hundred cents in gold. The answer to this is that most of us can not help regarding gold as a commodity having a stable value. So, we see a result in this direction.

Labor, too, is demanding more of the fifty-nine cent dollars for its share of production. It has a right to do so. If you measure wages as you measure commodity values, and it seems to me there can be only one yardstick, then labor is justified in asking for higher pay. Again, a result of tinkering with the currency becomes evident because labor is forced to pay more for what it buys as a result of the reduction in the dollar's gold value.

Then, finally, I am quite convinced that in addition to the factors I have discussed as having weight in causing fluctuation of government bond prices, no one can deny the influence that is being exerted by the radical labor element throughout the strikes that have been promoted.

These strikes have done more than just violate law by unjustified and unwarranted seizure of the property of other persons. They have developed among the strikers themselves a resentment against everyone who owns a farm or a home or a business.

The tragedy of this condition, to leave the subject of currency for a moment, is that the strikes show how little respect for law and order exists among a segment of our population. It is not only a tragedy. It is a dangerous sign and unless somewhere in our nation, government asserts its authority and protects rights, we may possibly be faced with a circumstance in which our nation will be held together again only by use of army guns.

To get back then to the bond market it seems to me there is a closely knit skein of conditions that prove where our government has gone into unsound ground. It can be pointed out how the tinkering with the currency has carried through to the ultimate consumer and the wage worker. It can be shown how the national government has disregarded the rights of part of the population and in doing so has created a class hatred which is liable to cause trouble in the nation for the next fifty years.

Notwithstanding the lessons to be learned from these experiences we observe how the same mistake is being made in another way. I refer now to the attitude of administration leaders who are supporting President Roosevelt's program to add six justices of his own choosing to the Supreme court of the United States. Throughout the argument that has come from proponents of the President's packing plan there runs a constant and recurring appeal that if we can only have six new justices in the Supreme court we can do all of the things that are necessary to bring about labor peace and complete business recovery.

Disregarding the merit or demerit of this argument, it seems to me one cannot help looking somewhat into the future and determining on the basis of experience of the past what may happen if the Supreme court is emasculated as the President proposes.

I said earlier in this article that there has grown up a tremendous disrespect for law. The continued prattle about the necessity for "new blood" in the Supreme court is simply and frankly another step in the direction of a government by men and not a government by law.

It is to be recalled that Mr. Roosevelt was given by his rubber stamp congress more power than any President of the United States ever has exercised before. I do not make the charge that the difficulties that I have attempted to analyze above resulted directly from according the Chief Executive so much power. But history surely teaches the lesson that where one man has so much power available he always makes more mistakes than where that power is exercised by the properly appointed or elected representatives of the masses of the people. I recall a homely saying, often heard in my youth, that two heads are better than one even though one may be a cabbage head. I am quite convinced that the 435 members of the house of representatives and the 96 members of the senate have more wisdom collectively than one man.

Adverting again to the questions of currency and prices, we have only to look across the Atlantic ocean and see what happened in Italy, in Russia and in Germany where one man attempted to establish his own ideas on the currency. From what I have heard from official sources, it must be true that in those three countries I mentioned, there are billions of pieces of paper money that are worth altogether little more than the cash value of the paper on your walls. It always has worked out that way.

Some of the business interests of the country apparently are taking time by the forelock and adjusting themselves to conditions where the government is by men and not by law. A few days ago the distilled spirits institute announced that it had elected W. Forbes Morgan as its president. Mr. Morgan, an uncle by marriage of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, resigned as treasurer of the Democratic National committee to enter the employment of the liquor interests. While there was no official announcement concerning Mr. Morgan's salary, the gossip persists that he is to be paid something like five-hundred-thousand dollars for five years' work in his new job.

His election raises two questions: What can Mr. Morgan do for the liquor industry that is worth so much money and, secondly, whether the selection of Mr. Morgan does not show how stupid business interests can be.

From Perfectly Cut Patterns

"I'M GLAD I'm not on the serving committee this week," muses Mrs. Smith of Walnut street, as she takes stock of herself in the mirror preparatory to leaving for the church supper. "I look entirely too swell for me—why, I'm almost excited! I always knew surprise waists were becoming, but how becoming I never knew till now. That little deceptiveness is just what I need, and these sleeves are the most comfortable things! If about half our circle wore dresses like this it would be better for all concerned; so many of us have outgrown the tailored streamlined styles. Now, Mrs. White for instance—"

"Why Mother, you look delectable in that shade of blue! And you look real stylish, too—you ought to be going to a Coronation."

"Oh, I'd much prefer the church supper, dear. I'll be a somebody there in my new dress but at a Coronation I would be little potatoes. By the way, what did they say about your new jumper at school?"

"Mother, I meant to tell you. Mary Jane and Betty are both going to coax their mothers to make one just like it. I said maybe you would loan them the pattern, would you?"

"Why of course. Did you tell them it took me only two afternoons to make yours including two blouses?"

Enter "The Duchess."

"Sis, you're pretty young to be talking about clothes so intelligently. When you get a figure that clothes really count on—ahem, like Yours Truly's for instance; then it might be different—oh Mother, how nice! I'm crazy about it. Gee, such smart lines! Remember, you promised to help me with a new party frock next week if I did well with this shirt-waister. I wish all dresses were as easy to sew and as swell to wear as it is."

"Perfectly cut patterns spell success for any frock, Kay; your party dress is as good as made right now. But I must be on my way or I'll be more than fashionably late for the affair. Bye, bye—be good girls and see that Daddy gets something to eat."

Pattern 1268 is for sizes 36 to 52. Size 38 requires 5/4 yards of 39 inch material.

Pattern 1996 is for sizes 6 to 14 years. Size 8 requires 1 1/4 yards of 39 inch material for the jumper and 1 1/4 yards for the blouse. Armscye and neck edges of jumper require 2 1/2 yards of 1 1/2 inch bias facing.

Pattern 1226 is for sizes 14 to 20 (32 to 42 bust). Size 16 requires 3 3/4 yards of 35 inch material.

WOMAN SEIZED IN NEW DEATH AT INFIRMARY

Attendants frequently find a dozen or more drunken men in the infirmary on Monday mornings, Supt. Venecsek said. Bottles are carried out by the bushel basketful.

This condition recently led Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, to warn all saloon operators in the vicinity that their licenses would be revoked if they were caught selling liquor to inmates.

Mokena Water Project Approved

The WPA has approved an additional 1000 feet of water main project for Mokena. The additional mains are to be laid north along Wolf Road. Work on the project will start within a few weeks.

Like All Women, You Want Your Clothes to Be Right

AND the only way that you can be sure they will be right is to know what the designers and creators of new styles have decreed shall be right.

Cherie Nicholas, nationally known authority, who writes on women's fashions for this paper, tells you just what you want to know and pictures for you the garments and hats that the well-dressed woman will be wearing in the weeks to come. The styles that Miss Nicholas describes are authentic and the garments that she depicts are up-to-the-minute, but they do not represent style extremes. The garments are those that will be worn by the average woman and that you will find for sale in your home stores.

Keep up with the changing styles through Miss Nicholas' illustrated fashion articles, appearing in these columns, and tell your friends about them.

ACTOR AND GLOBE TROTTER LOCATES IN TINLEY

(Mr. Harry Fetterer, a life long actor and who has travelled all over the world, is Tinley Park's newest resident.

Mr. Fetterer has played the R. K. O. circuit, and played at the two years run of the World's Fair in Chicago.

Mr. Fetterer has been presenting a fast moving puppet play entitled "The Downfall of Punchinello."

He is rated as the great American ventriloquist.

Besides all his theatrical accomplishments, Mr. Fetterer is also a Spanish-American war veteran and is now receiving a bonus for his war services.

He intends to semi-retire from his theatrical activities and has been so well impressed with Tinley Park that he has purchased a home in the Elmore subdivision and plans to make his future home in Tinley Park and this community extends a hearty welcome to him.

Kill Relief Tax

At the annual Frankfort town meeting held in Mokena Tuesday, the special relief tax of 3 mills on the dollar or 30¢ per $100 assessed property valuation was cut down to 20¢ which automatically kills this tax as the state will not consider anything under 30 cents.
